TO JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

(On His Book of Joyous Children)

*Yours is a garden of old-fashioned flowers;
Joyous children delight to play there;
Weary men find rest in its bowers,
Watching the lingering light of day there.*

*Old-time tunes and young love-laughter
Ripple and run among the roses;
Memory's echoes, murmuring after,
Fill the dusk when the long day closes.*

*Simple songs with a cadence olden—
These you learned in the Forest of Arden.
Friendly flowers with hearts all golden—
These you borrowed from Eden's garden.*

*This is the reason why all men love you;
Truth to life is the finest art;
Other poets may soar above you—
You keep close to the human heart.*

INTRODUCTION

James Whitcomb Riley, who has written so many beautiful verses for the children, was himself a little Hoosier folk-child such as he describes, with blue eyes and flaxen hair and owning "the bird songs and the hills." He was born in the midst of the lovely Indiana country, in the little town of Greenfield. His love of nature gave him joy because he saw so much in the life around him there and felt so deeply and truly about everything that he saw. He heard a voice in the wind and felt the beauty and the wonder in the coming out of the young leaves and the flowers in the spring-time; the blossoms on the trees were to him lovelier than anything else in the whole world. To watch the gauzy-winged dragon-fly hovering over the water gave him great pleasure, and the still water itself made him think of a sleeping child. Mr. Riley's love of nature and his childhood happiness are interwoven in many of his poems. He speaks of his heart's "brimming over" with joy

"When the bloom was on the clover, and the blue was in the sky."

Surely no one could be richer in sweet memories to look back upon and cherish than our own Hoosier poet. Still fresh in the heart of the man is the remembrance of his mother's voice lulling him to sleep and telling him fairy stories as he lay in the "old trundle-bed." Through these vivid memories which he has put into his verse, he makes us feel again with him the joy when "Granny" came to his house, and the wonder he felt at "the circus-day parade," with its bugle and drum and long procession. He has made us acquainted with the "place where the children used to play," and the "Old Swimmin'-Hole," where he plunged. Best of all is our visit with him out to "Old Aunt Mary's." We can see Aunt Mary now, as she stood in the vine-shaded door:

INTRODUCTION

". . . And her face—ah, me!
Wasn't it good for a boy to see—
And wasn't it good for a boy to be
Out to Old Aunt Mary's?"

Another pleasant memory is given in the account of the first school that Mr. Riley attended. "The first of my teachers was a little, old, rosy, roly-poly woman who looked as though she might have come rolling out of a fairy story, so lovable she was and so jolly and amiable. Her school was kept in her little old Dame Trot sort of a dwelling of three rooms, and, like a bracket on the wall, was a little porch in the rear, which was a part of the playground of her 'scholars,' for in those days pupils were called 'scholars' very affectionately by their teachers. Her very youthful school was composed of about twelve or fifteen boys and girls. I remember particularly the lame boy who always got the first ride in the swing in the locust tree during 'recess.' This first teacher was a mother, too, to all her 'scholars,' and when the little ones got drowsy she carried them to an inner room—a sitting-room—where, many a time, I was taken with two other little chaps and laid to slumber on a little made-down pallet on the floor."

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Riley's love for the children is so tender and deep that they claim him as theirs and respond to his love in a very hearty manner, especially on his birthday, which they think belongs to them for honoring the poet as they please.

"When Riley-Day comes slippin' round
And punkins ripe lay on the ground,
I feel as if I'd like to send
Some poetry to a dear old friend."

(From a schoolboy to Mr. Riley, October 7, 1913.)

INTRODUCTION

Thousands of lines as genuine as these were sent to the poet by the children on his last birthday. All of them showed that the celebration of Riley Day is a genuine expression of the love of the children of Indiana for their own Hoosier poet. That such a remembrance pleased him was shown in the note he sent to the children calling himself an "elderly child," and in the way he smiled at the long procession of young upturned faces marching with greetings and songs and flowers by his home on Lockerbie Street. One week after the joyous celebration of Riley Day in Indianapolis, the poet received a most generous reception from the schools of Cincinnati as he passed through that city on his way South. There was a half-holiday; the children gave Mr. Riley the keys of the city; they sang his songs and recited his poems for him in a beautiful way.

Mr. Riley has amused us by his gentle humor, cheered us by his uplifting verse and made us all better through his sympathy and his gift of song. He has caused us to look on nature with the fervor of his own love for it; he has made us see the value of sweet memories of childhood days and changed the lives of children through his love for them. But our greatest debt to him is for his power to make us understand the meaning of the true life and spirit of the plain Hoosier folk, because he understands them so well, and sees the beauty and tenderness of their life. Mr. Riley is indeed the poet of the people. He fills out his own measure of The Poet of the Future, who, he says, will come with

“The honest heart of lowliness, the honest soul of love
For human-kind and nature-kind about him
and above.
His hands will hold no harp, in sooth; his lifted brow will bear
No coronet of laurel—nay, nor symbol anywhere,
Save that his palms are brothers to the toiler’s
at the plow,
His face to heaven, and the dew of duty on his brow.”

DREAM-MARCH

WASN'T it a funny dream!—perfectly bewild'rin'!—

Last night, and night before, and night before that,

Seemed like I saw the march o' regiments o' children,

Marching to the robin's fife and cricket's rat-ta-tat!

Lily-banners overhead, with the dew upon 'em,
On flashed the little army, as with sword and flame;

Like the buzz o' bumble-wings, with the honey on 'em,

Came an eery, cheery chant, chiming as it came:—

THE RILEY READER

Where go the children? Traveling! Traveling!

Where go the children, traveling ahead?

Some go to kindergarten; some go to day-school;

Some go to night-school; and some go to bed!

Smooth roads or rough roads, warm or winter weather,

On go the children, towhead and brown, Brave boys and brave girls, rank and file together,

Marching out of Morning-Land, over dale and down:

Some go a-gipsying out in country places—

Out through the orchards, with blossoms on the boughs

Wild, sweet, and pink and white as their own glad faces;

And some go, at evening, calling home the cows.

Where go the children? Traveling! Traveling!

Where go the children, traveling ahead?

THE RILEY READER

Some go to foreign wars, and camps by the firelight—

Some go to glory so; and some go to bed!

Some go through grassy lanes leading to the city—

Thinner grow the green trees and thicker grows the dust;

Ever, though, to little people any path is pretty
So it leads to newer lands, as they know it must.

Some go to singing less; some go to list'ning;
Some go to thinking over ever-nobler themes;

Some go anhungered, but ever bravely whistling, Turning never home again only in their dreams.

Where go the children, traveling ahead?

Some go to conquer things; some go to try them;

Some go to dream them; and some go to bed!

THE BEE-BAG

WHEN I was ist a Brownie—a weenty-teenty
Brownie—

Long afore I got to be like Childerns is to-day,—

My good old Brownie granny gimme sweeter thing 'an can'y—

An' 'at's my little bee-bag the Fairies stold
away!

O my little bee-bag—

My little funny bee-bag—

My little honey bee-bag

The Fairies stold away!

One time when I bin swung in wiv annuver
Brownie young-un

An' lef' sleepin' in a pea-pod while our par-unts went to play,

I waked up ist a-cryin' an' a-sobbin' an' a-sighin'

Fer my little funny bee-bag the Fairies stold
away!

THE RILEY READER

O my little bee-bag—
My little funny bee-bag—
My little honey bee-bag
The Fairies stold away!

It's awful much bewilder'n', but 'at's why I'm a Childern,

Ner goin' to git to be no more a Brownie sence that day!

My parunts, so imprudent, lef' me sleepin'
when they shouldn't!

An' I want my little bee-bag the Fairies stold
away!

O my little bee-bag—
My little funny bee-bag—
My little honey bee-bag
The Fairies stold away!

THE dawn was a dawn of splendor,
And the blue of the morning skies
Was as placid and deep and tender
As the blue of a baby's eyes.

LITTLE Orphant Annie's come to our house to stay,

An' wash the cups an' saucers up, an' brush the crumbs away,

An' shoo the chickens off the porch, an' dust
the hearth, an' sweep,

An' make the fire, an' bake the bread, an' earn her board-an'-keep;

An' all us other childern, when the supper-things is done,

We set around the kitchen fire an' has the mostest fun

A-list'nin' to the witch-tales 'at Annie tells about,

An' the Gobble-uns 'at gits you

Don't

Out!

THE RILEY READER

Wunst they wuz a little boy wouldn't say his prayers,—

An' when he went to bed at night, away upstairs,

His Mammy heerd him holler, an' his Daddy
heerd him bawl,

An' when they turn't the kivvers down, he wuzn't there at all!

An' they seeked him in the rafter-room, an'
cubby-hole, an' press,

An' seeked him up the chimbley-flue, an' ever'- wheres, I guess;

But all they ever found wuz thist his pants an'

THE RILEY READER

An' wunst, when they was "company," an' ole folks wuz there,

She mocked 'em an' shocked 'em, an' said she didn't care!

An' thist as she kicked her heels, an' turn't to run an' hide

They wuz two great big Black Things a-stand-in' by her side,

An' they snatched her through the ceilin' 'fore
she knowed what she's about!

An' the Gobble-uns 'll git you

Don't

Watch

Out!

An' little Orphant Annie says, when the blaze is blue,

An' the lamp-wick sputters, an' the wind goes woo-oo!

An' you hear the crickets quit, an' the moon is gray,

An' the lightnin'-bugs in dew is all squenched
away,—

THE RILEY READER

You better mind yer parunts, an' yer teachurs fond an' dear,
An' churish them 'at loves you, an' dry the orphant's tear,
An' he'p the pore an' needy ones 'at clusters all
about,
Er the Gobble-uns 'll git you
Ef you
Don't

SOME SCATTERING REMARKS OF BUB'S

I RUTHER go to the Circus-show :
But, 'cause my parunts told me so,
I ruther go to the Sund'y-school,
'Cause there I learn the goldun rule.

Say, Pa,—what is the golden rule
'At's allus at the Sund'y-school?

LITTLE DICK AND THE CLOCK

WHEN Dicky was sick
In the night, and the clock,
As he listened, said "Tick-Atty—tick-atty—tock!"
He said that it said,
Every time it said "Tick,"
It said "Sick," instead,
And he heard it say "Sick!"
And when it said "Tick-Atty—tick-atty—tock,"
He said it said "Sick-Atty—sick-atty—sock!"
And he tried to see then,
But the light was too dim,
Yet he heard it again—
And 'twas talking to him!
And then it said "Sick-Atty—sick-atty—sick!"
You poor little Dick-Atty—Dick-atty—Dick!—

THE RILEY READER

Have you got the hick-Atties? Hi, send for Doc
To hurry up quick-

THE RAGGEDY MAN

O THE Raggedy Man! He works fer Pa;
An' he's the goodest man ever you saw!
He comes to our house every day,
An' waters the horses, an' feeds 'em hay;
An' he opens the shed—an' we all ist laugh
When he drives out our little old wobble-ly calf;

THE RILEY READER

An' nen—ef our hired girl says he can—
He milks the cow fer 'Lizabuth Ann.—

Ain't he a' awful good Raggedy Man?

Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy Man!

W'y, The Raggedy Man—he's ist so good,
He splits the kindlin' an' chops the wood;
An' nen he spades in our garden, too,
An' does most things 'at boys can't do.—

He clumbed clean up in our big tree

An' shooked a' apple down fer me—

An' 'nother 'n', too, fer 'Lizabuth Ann—

An' 'nother 'n', too, fer The Raggedy Man.—

Ain't he a' awful kind Raggedy Man?

Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy Man!

An' The Raggedy Man, he knows most rhymes,
An' tells 'em, ef I be good, sometimes:
Knows 'bout Giunts, an' Griffuns, an' Elves,

Wunst our hired girl, when she Got the supper, an' we all et,
An' it wuz night, an' Ma an' me
An' Pa went wher' the “Social” met,—
An' nen when we come home, an' see A light in the kitchen door, an' we Heerd a maccordeun, Pa says “Lan'- O'-Gracious! who can her beau be?”
An' I marched in, an' 'Lizabuth Ann Wuz parchin' corn fer The Raggedy Man!

THE BEAR-STORY

THAT ALEX “IST MAKED UP HIS-OWN-SE’F”

W’y, wunst they wuz a Little Boy went out In the woods to shoot a Bear. So, he went out ’Way in the grea’-big woods—he did.—An’ he Wuz goin’ along—an’ goin’ along, you know,
An’ purty soon he heerd somepin’ go

“Wooh!”—

Ist thataway—“Woo-oo!” An’ he wuz skeered,

He wuz. An’ so he runned an’ clumbed a tree—

A grea’-big tree, he did,—a sicka-more tree.
An’ nen he heerd it ag’in: an’ he looked round,
An’ ’t’uz a Bear!—a grea’-big, shore-nuff Bear!—

THE RILEY READER

No; 't'uz two Bears, it wuz——two grea'-big Bears—

One of 'em wuz—ist one's a grea'-big Bear.—
But they ist boff went "Wooh!"—An' here they come

To climb the tree an' git the Little Boy
An' eat him up!

An' nen the Little Boy
He 'uz skeered worse'n ever! An' here come
The grea'-big Bear a-climbin' th' tree to git
The Little Boy an' eat him up—Oh, no!—
It 'uzn't the Big Bear 'at clumb the tree—
It 'uz the Little Bear. So here he come Climbin' the tree—an' climbin' the tree! Nen when

He git wite clos't to the Little Boy, w'y, nen
The Little Boy he ist pulled up his gun
An' shot the Bear, he did, an' killed him dead!
An' nen the Bear he falled clean on down out
The tree—away clean to the ground, he did—Spling-splung! he falled plum down, an' killed him, too!

An' lit wite side o' where the Big Bear's at.

THE RILEY READER

An' nen the Big Bear's awful mad, you bet!—
'Cause—'cause the Little Boy he shot his gun
An' killed the Little Bear.—'Cause the Big Bear

He—he 'uz the Little Bear's Papa.—An' so here

He come to climb the big old tree an' git
The Little Boy an' eat him up! An' when
The Little Boy he saw the grea'-big Bear
A-comin', he 'uz badder skeered, he wuz,
Than any time! An' so he think he'll climb
Up higher—'way up higher in the tree
Than the old Bear kin climb, you know.—But he—

He can't climb higher 'an old Bears kin climb,—

'Cause Bears kin climb up higher in the trees
Than any little Boys in all the Wo-r-r-ld!

An' so here come the grea'-big Bear, he did,—
A-climbin' up—an' up the tree, to git
The Little Boy an' eat him up! An' so The Little Boy he clumbed on higher, an'
higher,

THE RILEY READER

An' higher up the tree—an' higher—an'
higher—

An' higher'n iss-here house is!—An' here come
Th' old Bear—clos'ter to him all the time!

An' nen—first thing you know,—when th' old Big Bear

Wuz wite clos't to him—nen the Little Boy
Ist jabbed his gun wite in the old Bear's mouf
An' shot an' killed him dead!—No; I fergot,—
He didn't shoot the grea'-big Bear at all—
'Cause they 'uz no load in the gun, you know—
'Cause when he shot the Little Bear, w'y, nen
No load 'uz anymore nen in the gun!

But th' Little Boy clumbed higher up, he did—
He clumbed lots higher—an' on up higher— an' higher

An' higher—tel he ist can't climb no higher,
'Cause nen the limbs 'uz all so little, 'way
Up in the teeny-weeny tip-top of The tree, they'd break down wiv him ef he don't

Be keerful! So he stop an' think: An' nen

THE RILEY READER

He look around—An' here come th' old Bear!
An' so the Little Boy make up his mind
He's got to ist git out o' there someway!—
'Cause here come the old Bear!—so clos't, his bref's

Purt' nigh so's he kin feel how hot it is Ag'inst his bare feet—ist like old "Ring's" bref
When he's be'n out a-huntin' an' 's all tired.
So when th' old Bear's so clos't—the Little Boy
Ist gives a grea'-big jump fer 'nother tree—
No!—no, he don't do that!—I tell you what
The Little Boy does:—W'y, nen—w'y, he—
Oh, yes—

The Little Boy he finds a hole up there
'At's in the tree—an' climbs in there an'
hides—

An' nen the old Bear can't find the Little Boy
At all!—but, purty soon th' old Bear finds
The Little Boy's gun 'at's up there—'cause the gun

It's too tall to tooked wiv him in the hole.
So, when the old Bear find' the gun, he knows
The Little Boy's ist hid 'round somers there,—

THE RILEY READER

An' th' old Bear 'gins to snuff an' sniff around,
An' sniff an' snuff around—so's he kin find Out where the Little Boy's hid at.—An' nen—
nen—

Oh, yes!—W'y, purty soon the old Bear climbs
'Way out on a big limb—a grea'-long limb,—
An' nen the Little Boy climbs out the hole
An' takes his ax an' chops the limb off! . . .

Nen

The old Bear falls k-splunge! clean to the ground,

An' bu'st an' kill hisse'f plum dead, he did!

An' nen the Little Boy he git his gun
An' 'menced a-climbin' down the tree ag'in—
No!—no, he didn't git his gun—'cause when The Bear falled, nen the gun falled, too—An' broked

It all to pieces, too!—An' nicest gun!—
His Pa ist buyed it!—An' the Little Boy
Ist cried, he did; an' went on climbin' down
The tree—an' climbin' down—an' climbin' down!—

THE RILEY READER

An'-sir! when he 'uz purt' nigh down,—w'y,
nen

The old Bear he jumped up ag'in!—an' he Ain't dead at all—ist 'tendin' thataway,
So he kin git the Little Boy an' eat
Him up! But the Little Boy he 'uz too smart
To climb clean down the tree.—An' the old Bear

He can't climb up the tree no more—'cause
when

He fell, he broke one of his—He broke all His legs!—an' nen he couldn't climb! But he Ist won't go 'way an' let the Little Boy
Come down out of the tree. An' the old Bear Ist growls 'round there, he does—ist growls an' goes

"Wooh!—woo-oo-h!" all the time! An' Little Boy

He haf to stay up in the tree—all night—
An' 'thout no supper neever!—Only they Wuz apples on the tree!—An' Little Boy
Et apples—ist all night—an' cried—an' cried!

THE RILEY READER

Nen when 't'uz morning th' old Bear went
 "Wooh!"

Ag'in, an' try to climb up in the tree
An' git the Little Boy—But he can't Climb t' save his soul, he can't!—An' oh! he's mad!—

He ist tear up the ground! an' go "Woo-oo!"
An'—Oh, yes!—purty soon, when morning's come

All light—so's you kin see, you know,—w'y,
 nen

The old Bear finds the Little Boy's gun, you know,

'At's on the ground.—(An' it ain't broke at all—

I ist said that!) An' so the old Bear think He'll take the gun an' shoot the Little Boy:—
But Bears they don't know much 'bout shootin'
 guns:

So when he go to shoot the Little Boy,
The old Bear got the other end the gun
Ag'in' his shoulder, 'stid o' th'other end—

THE RILEY READER

So when he try to shoot the Little Boy,
It shot the Bear, it did—an' killed him dead!
An' nen the Little Boy clumb down the tree
An' chopped his old woolly head off.—Yes, an' killed

The other Bear ag'in, he did—an' killed
All boff the bears, he did—an' tuk 'em home
An' cooked 'em, too, an' et 'em!

—An' that's all.

THE BLOSSOMS ON THE TREES

BLOSSOMS crimson, white, or blue,
Purple, pink, and every hue,
From sunny skies, to tintings drowned
In dusky drops of dew,
I praise you all, wherever found,
And love you through and through;—
But, Blossoms on the Trees,
With your breath upon the breeze,
There's nothing all the world around
As half as sweet as you!

THE RILEY READER

Could the rhymers only wring
All the sweetness to the lees
Of all the kisses clustering
In juicy Used-to-bes,
To dip his rhymes therein and sing
The blossoms on the trees,—
“O Blossoms on the Trees,”
He would twitter, trill, and coo, “However sweet, such songs as these Are not as sweet as you:—
For you are blooming melodies
The eyes may listen to!”

WHILE THE HEART BEATS YOUNG

WHILE the heart beats young!—O the splendor of the Spring,
With all her dewy jewels on, is not so fair a thing!
The fairest, rarest morning of the blossom-time of May
Is not so sweet a season as the season of to-day

THE RILEY READER

While Youth's diviner climate folds and holds us, close caressed
As we feel our mothers with us by the touch of face and breast;—
Our bare feet in the meadows, and our fancies up among
The airy clouds of morning—while the heart beats young.

While the heart beats young and our pulses
leap and dance,
With every day a holiday and life a glad romance,—
We hear the birds with wonder, and with wonder watch their flight—
Standing still the more enchanted, both of hearing and of sight,
When they have vanished wholly,—for, in fancy, wing-to-wing
We fly to Heaven with them; and, returning, still we sing

OUR BARE FEET IN THE MEADOWS

THE RILEY READER

The praises of this lower Heaven with tireless voice and tongue,
Even as the Master sanctions—while the heart
beats young.

While the heart beats young!—While the heart
beats young!

O green and gold old Earth of ours, with azure overhung

And looped with rainbows!—grant us yet this grassy lap of thine—

We would be still thy children, through the shower and the shine!

So pray we, lisping, whispering, in childish love
and trust,

With our beseeching hands and faces lifted from the dust

By fervor of the poem, all unwritten and unsung,

Thou givest us in answer, while the heart beats young.

NO BOY KNOWS

THERE are many things that boys may know—

Why this and that are thus and so,—
Who made the world in the dark and lit
The great sun up to lighten it:
Boys know new things every day—
When they study, or when they play,—
When they idle, or sow and reap—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

Boys who listen—or should, at least,—
May know that the round old earth rolls
East;—
And know that the ice and the snow and the rain—

Ever repeating their parts again—
Are all just water the sunbeams first Sip from the earth in their endless thirst,
And pour again till the low streams leap.—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

THE RILEY READER

A boy may know what a long, glad while
It has been to him since the dawn's first smile,
When forth he fared in the realm divine
Of brook-laced woodland and spun-sunshine ;—
He may know each call of his truant mates,
And the paths they went,—and the pasture-gates
Of the 'cross-lots home through the dusk so deep.—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

O I have followed me, o'er and o'er,
From the flagrant drowse on the parlor-floor,
To the pleading voice of the mother when I even doubted I heard it then—
To the sense of a kiss, and a moonlit room,
And dewy odors of locust-bloom—
A sweet white cot—and a cricket's cheep.—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

THE afternoon of summer folds
Its warm arms round the marigolds.

THE YOUTHFUL PATRIOT

O WHAT did the little boy do
'At nobody wanted him to?
Didn't do nothin' but romp an' run,
An' whoop an' holler an' bang his gun,
An' bu'st fire-crackers, an' ist have fun—
An' 'at's all the little boy done!

THE CLOVER

SOME sings of the lilly, and daisy, and rose,
And the pansies and pinks that the Summertime throws
In the green grassy lap of the medder that lays Blinkin' up at the skyes through the sunshiny days;
But what is the lilly and all of the rest
Of the flowers, to a man with a hart in his brest
That was dipped brimmin' full of the honey and dew
Of the sweet clover-blossoms his babyhood knew?

AND SO I LOVE CLOVER

THE RILEY READER

I never set eyes on a clover-field now,
Er fool round a stable, er climb in the mow,
But my childhood comes back jest as clear and as plane

As the smell of the clover I'm sniffin' again;
And I wunder away in a barefooted dream, Whare I tangle my toes in the blossoms that gleam

With the dew of the dawn of the morning of love

Ere it wept ore the graves that I'm weepin' above.

And so I love clover—it seems like a part
Of the sacerdest sorrows and joys of my hart;
And wharever it blossoms, oh, thare let me bow
And thank the good God as I'm thankin' Him
now;

And I pray to Him still fer the stren'th when I die,

To go out in the clover and tell it good-by,
And lovin'ly nestle my face in its bloom
While my soul slips away on a breth of perfume.

IF I KNEW WHAT POETS KNOW

If I knew what poets know,
Would I write a rhyme
Of the buds that never blow
In the summer-time?
Would I sing of golden seeds
Springing up in ironweeds?
And of rain-drops turned to snow,
If I knew what poets know?

Did I know what poets do,
Would I sing a song Sadder than the pigeon's coo
When the days are long?
Where I found a heart in pain
I would make it glad again;
And the false should be the true,
Did I know what poets do.

If I knew what poets know,
I would find a theme Sweeter than the placid flow
Of the fairest dream:

THE RILEY READER

I would sing of love that lives
On the errors it forgives;
And the world would better grow

THE BROOK-SONG

LITTLE brook! Little brook!
You have such a happy look—
Such a very merry manner, as you swerve and curve and crook—
And your ripples, one and one,
Reach each other's hands and run
Like laughing little children in the sun!

Little brook, sing to me:
Sing about a bumblebee
That tumbled from a lily-bell and grumbled mumblingly,
Because he wet the film
Of his wings, and had to swim,
While the water-bugs raced round and laughed at him!

THE RILEY READER

Little brook—sing a song
Of a leaf that sailed along
Down the golden-braided center of your current swift and strong,
And a dragon-fly that lit
On the tilting rim of it,
And rode away and wasn't scared a bit.

And sing—how oft in glee
Came a truant boy like me,
Who loved to lean and listen to your lilting melody,
Till the gurgle and refrain
Of your music in his brain
Wrought a happiness as keen to him as pain.

Little brook—laugh and leap!
Do not let the dreamer weep:
Sing him all the songs of summer till he sink in softest sleep;
And then sing soft and low
Through his dreams of long ago—
Sing back to him the rest he used to know!

THE RILEY READER

OLD-FASHIONED ROSES

THEY ain't no style about 'em,
And they're sort o' pale and faded
Yit the doorway here, without 'em,
Would be lonesomer, and shaded
With a good 'eal blacker shadder
Than the morning-glories makes,
And the sunshine would look sadder
Fer their good old-fashion' sakes.

I like 'em 'cause they kind o'
Sort o' make a feller like 'em!
And I tell you, when I find a Bunch out whur the sun kin strike 'em,
It allus sets me thinkin'
O' the ones 'at used to grow
And peek in through the chinkin'
O' the cabin, don't you know!

And then I think o' mother,
And how she ust to love 'em—
When they wuzn't any other,
'Less she found 'em up above em!

THE RILEY READER

And her eyes, afore she shut 'em,
Whispered with a smile and said
We must pick a bunch and putt 'em
In her hand when she wuz dead.

But, as I wuz a-sayin',
They ain't no style about 'em
Very gaudy er displayin',
But I wouldn't be without 'em,—
'Cause I'm happier in these posies,
And hollyhawks and sich,
Than the hummin'-bird 'at noses
In the roses of the rich.

THE OLD SWIMMIN'-HOLE

OH! the old swimmin'-hole! whare the crick
so still and deep Looked like a baby-river that was laying half asleep,
And the gurgle of the worter round the drift jest below
Sounded like the laugh of something we onc't ust to know

THE MERRY DAYS OF YOUTH

THE RILEY READER

Before we could remember anything but the eyes

Of the angels lookin' out as we left Paradise;
But the merry days of youth is beyond our controle,

And it's hard to part ferever with the old swimmin'-hole.

Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! In the happy days of yore,

When I,ust to lean above it on the old sickamore,

Oh! it showed me a face in its warm sunny tide

That gazed back at me so gay and glorified,
It made me love myself, as I leaped to caress
My shadder smilin' up at me with sich tenderness.

But them days is past and gone, and old Time's tuck his toll

From the old man come back to the old swimmin'-hole.

THE RILEY READER

Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! In the long, lazy days

When the humdrum of school made so many run-a-ways,

How pleasant was the journey down the old dusty lane,

Where the tracks of our bare feet was all printed so plain

You could tell by the dent of the heel and the sole

They was lots o' fun on hands at the old
swimmin'-hole.

But the lost joys is past! Let your tears in sorrow roll

Like the rain that used to dapple up the old swimmin'-hole.

There the bullrushes grewed, and the cattails
so tall,

And the sunshine and shadow fell over it all;
And it mottled the water with amber and gold Till the glad lilies rocked in the ripples that rolled;

And the snake-feeder's four gauzy wings fluttered by Like the ghost of a daisy dropped out of the sky,
Or a wounded apple-blossom in the breeze's controle
As it cut acrost some orchurd to'rds the old swimmin'-hole.

Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! When I last saw the place,
The scenes was all changed, like the change in my face;
The bridge of the railroad now crosses the spot
Whare the old divin'-log lays sunk and fergot.
And I stray down the banks whare the trees ust to be—
But never again will theyr shade shelter me!
And I wish in my sorrow I could strip to the soul,
And dive off in my grave like the old swimmin'-hole.

WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUNKIN

WHEN the frost is on the punkin' and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouck and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the clackin' of the guineys, and the cluck-in' of the hens,
And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence;
O, it's then's the times a feller is a-feelin' at his best,
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
As he leaves the house, bareheaded, and goes out to feed the stock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.
They's something kindo' harty-like about the atmusfere
When the heat of summer's over and the cool-in' fall is here—

WITH THE RISING SUN TO GREET HIM

THE RILEY READER

Of course we miss the flowers, and the blossoms on the trees,
And the mumble of the hummin'-birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin'; and the landscape through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the airy autumn days
Is a pictur' that no painter has the colorin' to mock—
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

The husky, rusty russel of the tassels of the corn,
And the raspin' of the tangled leaves, as golden as the morn;
The stubble in the furries—kindo' lonesome-like, but still
A-preachin' sermons to us of the barns they grewed to fill;
The strawstack in the medder, and the reaper in the shed;
The hosses in theyr stalls below—the clover overhead!—

THE RILEY READER

O, it sets my hart a-clickin' like the tickin' of a clock,

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's
in the shock!

Then your apples all is getherd, and the ones
a feller keeps

Is poured around the celler-floor in red and yeller heaps;

And your cider-makin' 's over, and your wimmern-folks is through

With theyr mince and apple-butter, and theyr souse and saussage, too! . . .

I don't know how to tell it—but ef sich a thing could be

As the Angels wantin' boardin', and they'd call around on me—

I'd want to 'commodate 'em—all the whole-indurin' flock—

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's
in the shock!

A SONG

THERE is ever a song somewhere, my dear;
There is ever a something sings alway:
There's the song of the lark when the skies are clear,
And the song of the thrush when the skies are gray.
The sunshine showers across the grain,
And the bluebird trills in the orchard tree;
And in and out, when the eaves dip rain,
The swallows are twittering ceaselessly.

THE RILEY READER

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above or dark or fair,
There is ever a song that our hearts may hear—
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear—
There is ever a song somewhere!

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
In the midnight black, or the midday blue:
The robin pipes when the sun is here,
And the cricket chirrups the whole night through.

The buds may blow, and the fruit may grow,
And the autumn leaves drop crisp and sear;
But whether the sun, or the rain, or the snow,
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above or dark or fair,
There is ever a song that our hearts may hear—
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear—
There is ever a song somewhere!

THOUGHTS FER THE DISCURAGED FARMER

THE summer winds is sniffin' round the bloomin' locus' trees;
And the clover in the pastur is a big day fer
the bees,
And t'ney been a-swiggin' honey, above board
and on the s'y,
Tel they stutter in theyr buzzin' and stagger as they fly.

The flicker on the fence-rail 'pears to jest spit on his wings

And roll up his feathers, by the sassy way he sings;

And the hoss-fly is a-whettin'-up his forelegs
fer biz,

And the off-mare is a-switchin' all of her tale they is.

They's been a heap o' rain, but the sun's out
to-day,

And the clouds of the wet spell is all cleared
away,

And the woods is all the greener, and the grass is greener still;

It may rain again to-morry, but I don't think it will.

Some says the crops is ruined, and the corn's drownded out,

And prophasy the wheat will be a failure,
without doubt;

But the kind Providence that has never failed us yet,

Will be on hands onc't more at the 'leventh hour, I bet!

THE JUNE IS HERE THIS MORNING

the day?

Is the chipmuck's health a-failin'?—Does he walk, er does he run?

Don't the buzzards ooze around up thare jest
like they've allus done?

Is they anything the matter with the rooster's
lungs er voice?

Ort a mortul be complanin' when dumb animals rejoice?

Then let us, one and all, be contentud with our lot;

The June is here this mornin', and the sun is shinin' hot.

Oh! let us fill our harts up with the glory of
the day,

And banish ev'ry doubt and care and sorrow
fur away!

THE NAME OF OLD GLORY

1898

OLD Glory! say, who,
By the ships and the crew,
And the long, blended ranks of the gray and the blue,—

Who gave you, Old Glory, the name that you bear

With such pride everywhere
As you cast yourself free to the rapturous air
And leap out full-length, as we're wanting you to?—

Who gave you that name, with the ring of the same,

And the honor and fame so becoming to you?—

Your stripes stroked in ripples of white and of red,

With your stars at their glittering best overhead—

THE RILEY READER

By day or by night
Their delightfulest light Laughing down from their little square heaven of blue!—
Who gave you the name of Old Glory?—say, who—
Who gave you the name of Old Glory?

*The old banner lifted, and faltering then
In vague lisps and whispers fell silent again.*

II

Old Glory,—speak out!—we are asking about How you happened to “favor” a name, so to say,
That sounds so familiar and careless and gay
As we cheer it and shout in our wild breezy way—
We—the crowd, every man of us, calling you that—
We—Tom, Dick, and Harry—each swinging his hat

THE RILEY READER

And hurraing "Old Glory!" like you were our kin,

When—Lord!—we all know we're as common as sin!

And yet it just seems like you humor us all,
And waft us your thanks, as we hail you and fall

Into line, with you over us, waving us on Where our glorified, sanctified betters have gone.—

And this is the reason we're wanting to know—

(And we're wanting it so!—

Where our own fathers went we are willing to go.)—

Oho!—

Who gave you the name of Old Glory?—

*The old flag unfurled with a billowy thrill
For an instant, then wistfully sighed and was still.*

III

Old Glory: the story we're wanting to hear
Is what the plain facts of your christening were,—

For your name—just to hear it,
Repeat it, and cheer it, 's a tang to the spirit
As salt as a tear;—

And seeing you fly, and the boys marching by,
There's a shout in the throat and a blur in the eye

And an aching to live for you always—or die,
If, dying, we still keep you waving on high.

And so, by our love

For you, floating above,

And the scars of all wars and the sorrows thereof,

Who gave you the name of Old Glory, and why
Are we thrilled at the name of Old Glory?

Then the old banner leaped, like a sail in the blast,

And fluttered an audible answer at last.—

THE RILEY READER

IV

And it spake, with a shake of the voice, and it said :—

By the driven snow-white and the living blood-red

Of my bars, and their heaven of stars overhead—

By the symbol conjoined of them all, skyward cast,

As I float from the steeple, or flap at the mast,

Or droop o'er the sod where the long grasses nod,—

My name is as old as the glory of God.

. . . . So I came by the name of Old Glory.

EXCEEDING ALL

Long life's a lovely thing to know,

With lovely health and wealth, forsooth,

And lovely name and fame—But O

THE OLD TRUNDLE-BED

O THE old trundle-bed where I slept when a

What canopied king might not covet the joy?
The glory and peace of that slumber of mine,
Like a long, gracious rest in the bosom divine:

The quaint, homely couch, hidden close from the light,

But daintily drawn from its hiding at night.
O a nest of delight, from the foot to the head,
Was the queer little, dear little, old trundle-
bed!

O the old trundle-bed, where I wondering saw
The stars through the window, and listened with awe

To the sigh of the winds as they tremblingly crept

Through the trees where the robin so restlessly slept:

A NEST OF DELIGHT

THE RILEY READER

Where I heard the low, murmurous chirp of the wren,
And the katydid listlessly chirrup again,
Till my fancies grew faint and were drowsily led Through the maze of the dreams of the old trundle-bed.

O the old trundle-bed! O the old trundle-bed!
With its plump little pillow, and old-fashioned spread;
Its snowy-white sheets, and the blankets above, Smoothed down and tucked round with the touches of love;
The voice of my mother to lull me to sleep
With the old fairy stories my memories keep Still fresh as the lilies that bloom o'er the head Once bowed o'er my own in the old trundlebed.

AN afternoon as ripe with heat
As might the golden pippin be.

OUT TO OLD AUNT MARY'S

WASN'T it pleasant, O brother mine,
In those old days of the lost sunshine
Of youth—when the Saturday's chores were through,
And the "Sunday's wood" in the kitchen, too,
And we went visiting, "me and you,"
Out to Old Aunt Mary's?—

It all comes back so clear to-day!
Though I am as bald as you are gray,—
Out by the barn-lot and down the lane
We patter along in the dust again,
As light as the tips of the drops of the rain,
Out to Old Aunt Mary's.

OUR CARES BEHIND, AND OUR HEARTS ÁHEAD

THE RILEY READER

We cross the pasture, and through the wood,
Where the old gray snag of the poplar stood,
Where the hammering "red-heads" hopped awry,
And the buzzard "raised" in the "clearing"- sky
And lolled and circled, as we went by
 Out to Old Aunt Mary's.

And then in the dust of the road again;
And the teams we met, and the countrymen;
And the long highway, with sunshine spread
As thick as butter on country bread,
Our cares behind, and our hearts ahead
 Out to Old Aunt Mary's.—

Why, I see her now in the open door
Where the little gourds grew up the sides and o'er
The clapboard roof!—And her face—ah, me!
Wasn't it good for a boy to see—
 Out to Old Aunt Mary's?—

THE RILEY READER

The jelly—the jam and the marmalade,
And the cherry and quince “preserves” she made!

And the sweet-sour pickles of peach and pear,

With cinnamon in 'em, and all things rare!—

And the more we ate was the more to spare,
Out to Old Aunt Mary's!

And the old spring-house, in the cool green gloom

Of the willow trees,—and the cooler room

Where the swinging shelves and the crocks were kept,

Where the cream in a golden languor slept, While the waters gurgled and laughed and wept—

Out to Old Aunt Mary's.

And, O my brother so far away,

This is to tell you she waits to-day

To welcome us:—Aunt Mary fell

Asleep this morning, whispering, “Tell
The boys to come.” And all is well

Out to Old Aunt Mary's.

And the tilting snipe stood fearless of the tru-

And the splashing of the swimmer, in the days

GRANNY

GRANNY'S come to our house,
And ho! my lawzy-daisy!
All the childern round the place
Is ist a-runnin' crazy!
Fetched a cake fer little Jake,
And fetched a pie fer Nanny,
And fetched a pear fer all the pack
That runs to kiss their Granny!

Lucy Ellen's in her lap,
And Wade and Silas Walker
Both's a-ridin' on her foot,
And 'Pollos on the rocker;
And Marthy's twins, from Aunt Marinn's.
And little Orphant Annie,
All's a-eatin' gingerbread
And giggle-un at Granny!

Tells us all the fairy tales
Ever thought er wundered—
And 'bundance o' other stories—
Bet she knows a hunderd!—

THE RILEY READER

Bob's the one fer "Whittington,"
And "Golden Locks" fer Fanny!
Hear 'em laugh and clap their hands,
Listenin' at Granny!

"Jack the Giant-Killer" 's good;
And "Bean-Stalk" 's another!—
So's the one of "Cinderell" "
And her old godmother;—
That-un's best of all the rest—Bestest one of any,—
Where the mices scampers home
Like we runs to Granny!

Granny's come to our house,
Ho! my lawzy-daisy!
All the childern round the place
Is ist a-runnin' crazy!
Fetched a cake fer little Jake,

GOD BLESS US EVERY ONE

“God bless us every one!” prayed Tiny Tim,
Crippled, and dwarfed of body, yet so tall
Of soul, we tiptoe earth to look on him,
High towering over all.

He loved the loveless world, nor dreamed indeed

That it, at best, could give to him, the while,
But pitying glances, when his only need
Was but a cheery smile.

And thus he prayed, “God bless us every one!”—

Enfolding all the creeds within the span
Of his child-heart; and so, despising none,
Was nearer saint than man.

I like to fancy God, in Paradise,
Lifting a finger o’er the rhythmic swing
Of chiming harp and song, with eager eyes
Turned earthward, listening—

THE RILEY READER

The Anthem stilled—the Angels leaning there
Above the golden walls—the morning sun
Of Christmas bursting flower-like with the prayer,

BABYHOOD

HEIGH-HO! Babyhood! Tell me where you linger!

Let's toddle home again, for we have gone
astray;

Take this eager hand of mine and lead me by
the finger

Back to the lotus-lands of the far-away!

Turn back the leaves of life.—Don't read the story.—

Let's find the pictures, and fancy all the rest;
We can fill the written pages with a brighter glory

Than old Time, the story-teller, at his very best.

"GOD BLESS US EVERY-ONE!"

THE RILEY READER

Turn to the brook where the honeysuckle tipping

O'er its vase of perfume spills it on the breeze,

And the bee and humming-bird in ecstasy are sipping

From the fairy-flagons of the blooming locust-trees.

Turn to the lane where we used to "teeter-totter,"

Printing little foot-palms in the mellow mold—

Laughing at the lazy cattle wading in the water
Where the ripples dimple round the buttercups of gold;

Where the dusky turtle lies basking on the gravel

Of the sunny sand-bar in the middle tide,
And the ghostly dragon-fly pauses in his travel
To rest like a blossom where the water-lily died.

THE RILEY READER

Heigh-ho! Babyhood! Tell me where you linger!

Let's toddle home again, for we have gone
astray;

Take this eager hand of mine and lead me by
the finger

Back to the lotus-lands of the far-away!

A CHILD'S HOME—LONG AGO

EVEN as the gas-flames flicker to and fro,
The Old Man's wavering fancies leap and glow,—

As o'er the vision, like a mirage, falls
The old log cabin with its dingy walls,
And crippled chimney with its crutch-like prop
Beneath a sagging shoulder at the top:
The coonskin battened fast on either side—
The wisps of leaf-tobacco—"cut-and-dried";
The yellow strands of quartered apples, hung
In rich festoons that tangle in among

THE RILEY READER

The morning-glory vines that clamber o'er
The little clapboard roof above the door :
The old well-sweep that drops a courtesy
To every thirsting soul so graciously,
The stranger, as he drains the dripping gourd,
Intuitively murmurs, "Thank the Lord!"
Again through mists of memory arise
The simple scenes of home before the eyes :—
The happy mother, humming, with her wheel,
The dear old melodies that used to steal
So drowsily upon the summer air,
The house-dog hid his bone, forgot his care,
And nestled at her feet, to dream, perchance,
Some cooling dream of winter-time romance :
The square of sunshine through the open door
That notched its edge across the puncheon floor,

And made a golden coverlet whereon
The god of slumber had a picture drawn
Of Babyhood, in all the loveliness
Of dimpled cheek and limb and linsey dress :
The bough-filled fireplace, and the mantel wide,
Its fire-scorched ankles stretched on either side,

THE RILEY READER

Where, perched upon its shoulders 'neath the joist,

The old clock hiccoughed, harsh and huskyvoiced,

And snarled the premonition, dire and dread,
When it should hammer Time upon the head :

Tomatoes, red and yellow, in a row,
Preserved not then for diet, but for show,—
Like rare and precious jewels in the rough Whose worth was not appraised at half enough :

The jars of jelly, with their dusty tops ;
The bunch of pennyroyal ; the cordial drops ;
The flask of camphor, and the vial of squills,
The box of buttons, garden-seeds, and pills ;
And, ending all the mantel's bric-à-brac,
The old, time-honored "Family Almanack."
And Memory, with a mother's touch of love,
Climbs with us to the dusky loft above,
Where drowsily we trail our fingers in
The mealy treasures of the harvest bin ;
And, feeling with our hands the open track,
We pat the bag of barley on the back ;

THE RILEY READER

And, groping onward through the mellow
 gloom,
We catch the hidden apple's faint perfume,
And, mingling with it, fragrant hints of pear
And musky melon ripening somewhere.
Again we stretch our limbs upon the bed
Where first our simple childish prayers were said ;
And while, without, the gallant cricket trills
A challenge to the solemn whippoorwills,
And, filing on the chorus with his glee,
The katydid whets all the harmony
To feather-edge of incoherent song,
We drop asleep, and peacefully along
The current of our dreams we glide away
To the dim harbor of another day.

LOCKERBIE STREET

SUCH a dear little street it is, nestled away
From the noise of the city and heat of the day,
In cool shady coverts of whispering trees,
With their leaves lifted up to shake hands with the breeze
Which in all its wide wanderings never may meet
With a resting-place fairer than Lockerbie Street!

There is such a relief, from the clangor and din
Of the heart of the town, to go loitering in Through the dim, narrow walks, with the sheltering shade
Of the trees waving over the long promenade,
And littering lightly the ways of our feet
With the gold of the sunshine of Lockerbie Street.

THE RILEY READER

And the nights that come down the dark pathways of dusk,
With the stars in their tresses, and odors of musk
In their moon-woven raiments, bespangled with dews,
And looped up with lilies for lovers to use In the songs that they sing to the tinkle and beat
Of their sweet serenadings through Lockerbie Street.

O my Lockerbie Street! You are fair to be seen—
Be it noon of the day, or the rare and serene Afternoon of the night—you are one to my heart,
And I love you above all the phrases of art,
For no language could frame and no lips could repeat
My rhyme-haunted raptures of Lockerbie Street.

GRIGGSBY'S STATION

PAP's got his pattent-right, and rich as all creation;

But where's the peace and comfort that we all had before?

Le's go a-visitin' back to Griggsby's Station—

Back where we ust to be so happy and so pore!

I WANT TO SEE THE WIGGENSES

THE RILEY READER

The likes of us a-livin' here! It's jes' a mortal pity

To see us in this great big house, with cyarpets on the stairs,
And the pump right in the kitchen! And the city! city! city!—

And nothin' but the city all around us ever'- wheres!

Climb clean above the roof and look from the steeple,

And never see a robin, nor a beech or ellum
tree!

And right here in ear-shot of at least a thousan'
people,

And none that neighbors with us or we want to go and see!

Le's go a-visitin' back to Griggsby's Station—

Back where the latch-string's a-hangin' from the door,

And ever' neighbor round the place is dear as a relation—

Back where we ust to be so happy and so pore!

THE RILEY READER

I want to see the Wiggenses, the whole kit-and-bilin',

A-drivin' up from Shallor Ford to stay the Sunday through;

And I want to see 'em hitchin' at their son-in-law's and pilin'

Out there at 'Lizy Ellen's like they ust to do!

I want to see the piece-quilts the Jones girls is makin';

And I want to pester Laury 'bout their freckled hired hand,

And joke her 'bout the widower she come purt' nigh a-takin',

Till her Pap got his pension 'lowed in time to save his land.

Le's go a-visitin' back to Griggsby's Station—

Back where they's nothin' aggervatin' any more,

Shet away safe in the woods around the old location—

Back where we ust to be so happy and so pore!

THE RILEY READER

I want to see Marindy and he'p her with her

And hear her talk so lovin' of her man that's dead and gone,

And stand up with Emanuel to show me how he's growin',

And smile as I have saw her 'fore she putt her mournin' on.

And I want to see the Samples, on the old lower eighty,

Where John, our oldest boy, he was tuk and burried—for

His own sake and Katy's,—and I want to cry with Katy

As she reads all his letters over, writ from The War.

What's in all this grand life and high situation,
And nary pink nor hollyhawk a-bloomin' at

THE WAY THE BABY SLEPT

THIS is the way the baby slept:

A mist of tresses backward thrown
By quavering sighs where kisses crept
With yearnings she had never known:
The little hands were closely kept
About a lily newly blown—
And God was with her. And we wept.—
And this is the way the baby slept.

LET SOMETHING GOOD BE SAID

WHEN over the fair fame of friend or foe

The shadow of disgrace shall fall, instead
Of words of blame, or proof of thus and so,
Let something good be said.

Forget not that no fellow-being yet

May fall so low but love may lift his head:
Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet
If something good be said.

THE RILEY READER

No generous heart may vainly turn aside
In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead
But may awaken strong and glorified,
If something good be said.

And so I charge ye, by the thorny crown,
And by the cross on which the Saviour bled,
And by your own soul's hope of fair renown,
Let something good be said!

ANSELMO

YEARS did I vainly seek the good Lord's grace,— Prayed, fasted, and did penance dire and dread;
Did kneel, with bleeding knees and rainy face,
And mouth the dust, with ashes on my head;
Yea, still with knotted scourge the flesh I flayed,
Rent fresh the wounds, and moaned and shrieked insanely;

THE RILEY READER

And froth oozed with the pleadings that I made,
And yet I prayed on vainly, vainly, vainly!

A time, from out of swoon I lifted eye,
To find a wretched outcast, gray and grim,
Bathing my brow, with many a pitying sigh,
And I did pray God's grace might rest on him.—

Then, lo! a gentle voice fell on mine ears—
“Thou shalt not sob in suppliance hereafter; Take up thy prayers and wring them dry of tears,
And lift them, white and pure with love and laughter!”

So is it now for all men else I pray;
So is it I am blest and glad alway.

Just to be good—

This is enough—enough!

You look lots like yer mother: purty much same in size;

And about the same complected; and favor
about the eyes:

Like her, too, about livin' here, because she couldn't stay;

It'll 'most seem like you was dead like her!—

wasn't a year old then!

And now yer—how old air you? W'y, child, not "twenty"! When?

And yer nex' birthday's in Aprile! and you want to git married that day?

I wisht yer mother was livin'!—but I hain't got nothin' to say!

Twenty year! and as good a gyrl as parent ever found!

There's a straw ketched on to yer dress there—
I'll bresh it off—turn round.

THE CIRCUS-DAY PARADE

OH! the Circus-Day Parade! How the bugles
played and played!

And how the glossy horses tossed their flossy
manes and neighed,

As the rattle and the rhyme of the tenor-drum-
mer's time

Filled all the hungry hearts of us with melody
sublime!

How the grand band-wagon shone with a splendor all its own,

And glittered with a glory that our dreams had never known!

And how the boys behind, high and low of every kind,

Marched in unconscious capture, with a rapture undefined!

How the horsemen, two and two, with their plumes of white and blue

And crimson, gold and purple, nodding by at me and you,

THE RILEY READER

Waved the banners that they bore, as the knights in days of yore, Till our glad eyes gleamed and glistened like the spangles that they wore!

How the graceless-graceful stride of the elephant was eyed,
And the capers of the little horse that cantered
at his side!
How the shambling camels, tame to the plaudits of their fame,
With listless eyes came silent, masticating as they came.

How the cages jolted past, with each wagon
battened fast,
And the mystery within it only hinted of at last
From the little grated square in the rear, and nosing there
The snout of some strange animal that sniffed
the outer air!

THE GRAND BAND-WAGON

THE RILEY READER

And, last of all, The Clown, making mirth for all the town,
With his lips curved ever upward and his eyebrows ever down,
And his chief attention paid to the little mule that played
A tattoo on the dashboard with his heels, in the Parade.

Oh! the Circus-Day Parade! How the bugles
played and played!
And how the glossy horses tossed their flossy
manes and neighed,
As the rattle and the rhyme of the tenor-drum-
mer's time
Filled all the hungry hearts of us with melody
sublime!

THROUGH every happy line I sing
I feel the tonic of the Spring.
The day is like an old-time face
That gleams across some grassy place.

AWAY

I CAN not say, and I will not say
That he is dead.—He is just away!

With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,—

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;

And loyal still, as he gave the blows
Of his warrior-strength to his country's foes.—

Mild and gentle, as he was brave,—
When the sweetest love of his life he gave

To simple things:—Where the violets grew Blue as the eyes they were likened to,

MILD AND GENTLE, AS HE WAS BRAVE

The touches of his hands have strayed
As reverently as his lips have prayed:

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirred
Was dear to him as the mocking-bird;

And he pitied as much as a man in pain
A writhing honey-bee wet with rain.—

Think of him still as the same, I say:
He is not dead—he is just away!

ON THE DEATH OF LITTLE MAHALA ASHCRAFT

“LITTLE Haly! Little Haly!” cheeps the robin in the tree;
“Little Haly!” sighs the clover, “Little Haly!”
moans the bee;
“Little Haly! Little Haly!” calls the killdeer at twilight;
And the katydids and crickets hollers “Haly!”
all the night.

THE RILEY READER

The sunflowers and the hollyhawks droops
 over the garden fence;
The old path down the garden walks still holds her footprints' dents;
And the well-sweep's swingin' bucket seems to wait fer her to come And start it on its wortery errant down the old bee-gum.

The beehives all is quiet; and the little Jersey steer,
When any one comes nigh it, acts so lonesome-
 like and queer;
And the little Banty chickens kindo' cutters
 faint and low,
Like the hand that now was feedin' 'em was one they didn't know.

They's sorrow in the waivin' leaves of all the apple trees;
And sorrow in the harvest-sheaves, and sorrow
 in the breeze;

THE RILEY READER

And sorrow in the twitter of the swallows
 'round the shed;
And all the song her redbird sings is "Little Haly's dead!"

The medder 'pears to miss her, and the pathway through the grass, Whare the dewdrops ust to kiss her little bare feet as she passed;
And the old pin in the gate-post seems to kindo'-sorto' doubt
That Haly's little sunburnt hands'll ever pull it out.

Did her father er her mother ever love her more'n me,
Er her sisters er her brother prize her love more tendurly?
I question—and what answer?—only tears,
 and tears alone,
And ev'ry neighbor's eyes is full o' tear-drops
 as my own.

“Little Haly! Little Haly!” cheeps the robin in

And the katydids and crickets hollers “Haly!”
all the night.

WHO BIDES HIS TIME

Who bides his time, and day by day
Faces defeat full patiently,
And lifts a mirthful roundelay,
However poor his fortunes be,—
He will not fail in any qualm
Of poverty—the paltry dime
It will grow golden in his palm,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time—he tastes the sweet
Of honey in the saltiest tear;
And though he fares with slowest feet,
Joy runs to meet him, drawing near:

And, like a never-ending rhyme,
The roadsides bloom in his applause,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time, and fevers not
In the hot race that none achieves,
Shall wear cool-wreathen laurel, wrought
With crimson berries in the leaves;
And he shall reign a goodly king,
And sway his hand o'er every clime,
With peace writ on his signet-ring,
Who bides his time.

THE OLD MAN AND JIM

OLD man never had much to say—
'Ceptin' to Jim,—
And Jim was the wildest boy he had—
And the old man jes' wrapped up in him!
Never heerd him speak but once
Er twice in my life,—and first time was

THE RILEY READER

When the army broke out, and Jim he went,
The old man backin' him, fer three months;
And all 'at I heerd the old man say
Was, jes' as we turned to start away,—

“Well, good-by, Jim:
Take keer of yourse'f!”

'Peared-like, he was more satisfied
Jes' lookin' at Jim
And likin' him all to hisse'f-like, see?—
'Cause he was jes' wrapped up in him!
And over and over I mind the day
The old man come and stood round in the way
While we was drillin', a-watchin' Jim—
And down at the deepot a-heerin' him say,
“Well, good-by, Jim:
Take keer of yourse'f!”

Never was nothin' about the farm
Disting'ished Jim;
Neighbors all ust to wonder why
The old man 'peared wrapped up in him:
But when Cap. Biggler he writ back
'At Jim was the bravest boy we had

THE RILEY READER

In all the whole durn rigiment, white er black,
And his fightin' good as his farmin' bad—
'At he had led, with a bullet clean Bored through his thigh, and carried the flag
Through the bloodiest battle you ever seen,—
The old man wound up a letter to him
'At Cap. read to us, 'at said: "Tell Jim Good-by,
And take keer of hisse'f!"

Jim come home jes' long enough
To take the whim
'At he'd like to go back in the calvery—
And the old man jes' wrapped up in him!
Jim 'lowed 'at he'd had sich luck afore,
Guessed he'd tackle her three years more.
And the old man give him a colt he'd raised,
And follered him over to Camp Ben Wade,
And laid around fer a week er so,
Watchin' Jim on dress-parade—
Tel finally he rid away,
And last he heerd was the old man say,—
"Well, good-by, Jim:
Take keer of yourse'f!"

THE RILEY READER

Tuk the papers, the old man did,

A-watchin' fer Jim—

Fully believin' he'd make his mark

Some way—jes' wrapped up in him!—

And many a time the word 'u'd come

'At stirred him up like the tap of a drum—

At Petersburg, fer instunce, where

Jim rid right into their cannons there,

And tuk 'em, and p'inted 'em t'other way,

And socked it home to the boys in gray,

As they scooted fer timber, and on and on—

Jim a lieutenant and one arm gone,

And the old man's words in his mind all day,—

“Well, good-by, Jim:

Take keer of yourse'f!”

Think of a private, now, perhaps,

We'll say like Jim,

'At's clumb clean up to the shoulder-straps—

And the old man jes' wrapped up in him!

Think of him—with the war plum' through,

And the glorious old Red-White-and-Blue

A-laughin' the news down over Jim,

And the old man, bendin' over him—

THE RILEY READER

The surgeon turnin' away with tears
'At hadn't leaked fer years and years,
As the hand of the dyin' boy clung to His father's, the old voice in his ears,—

“Well, good-by, Jim:
Take keer of yourse'f!”

A LIFE-LESSON

THERE! little girl; don't cry!

They have broken your doll, I know;
And your tea-set blue,
And your play-house, too,
Are things of the long ago;
But childish troubles will soon pass by.—
There! little girl; don't cry!

There! little girl; don't cry!

They have broken your slate, I know;
And the glad, wild ways
Of your schoolgirl days
Are things of the long ago;
But life and love will soon come by.—
There! little girl; don't cry!

THE RILEY READER

There! little girl; don't cry!
They have broken your heart, I know;
And the rainbow gleams
Of your youthful dreams
Are things of the long ago;
But heaven holds all for which you sigh.—
There! little girl; don't cry!

THE PRAYER PERFECT

DEAR Lord! kind Lord!
Gracious Lord! I pray
Thou wilt look on all I love,
Tenderly to-day!
Weed their hearts of weariness;
Scatter every care
Down a wake of angel-wings
Winnowing the air.
Bring unto the sorrowing
All release from pain;
Let the lips of laughter
Overflow again;

THEY HAVE BROKEN YOUR HEART, I KNOW

THE RILEY READER

And with all the needy
O divide, I pray,
This vast treasure of content
That is mine to-day!

THE HOOSIER FOLK-CHILD

THE Hoosier Folk-Child—all unsung—Unlettered all of mind and tongue;
Unmastered, unmolested—made
Most wholly frank and unafraid:
Untaught of any school—unvexed
Of law or creed—all unperplexed—
Unsermoned, ay, and undefiled,
An all imperfect-perfect child—
A type which (Heaven forgive us!) you
And I do tardy honor to,
And so profane the sanctities
Of our most sacred memories.
Who, growing thus from boy to man,
That dares not be American?
Go, Pride, with prudent underbuzz—
Go whistle! as the Folk-Child does.

THE RILEY READER

The Hoosier Folk-Child's world is not Much wider than the stable-lot
Between the house and highway fence
That bounds the home his father rents.
His playmates mostly are the ducks
And chickens, and the boy that "shucks
Corn by the shock," and talks of town,
And whether eggs are "up" or "down,"
And prophecies in boastful tone
Of "owning horses of his own,"
And "being his own man," and "when He gets to be, what he'll do then."— Takes out his jack-knife dreamily
And makes the Folk-Child two or three Crude corn-stalk figures,—a wee span
Of horses and a little man.

The Hoosier Folk-Child's eyes are wise
And wide and round as brownies' eyes:
The smile they wear is ever blent
With all-expectant wonderment,—
On homeliest things they bend a look
As rapt as o'er a picture-book,

THE RILEY READER

And seem to ask, whate'er befall,
The happy reason of it all:—
Why grass is all so glad a green,
And leaves—and what their lisplings mean;—
Why buds grow on the boughs, and why
They burst in blossom by and by—
As though the orchard in the breeze
Had shook and popped its popcorn-trees,
To lure and whet, as well they might,
Some seven-league giant's appetite!

The Hoosier Folk-Child's chubby face
Has scant refinement, caste or grace,—
From crown to chin, and cheek to cheek,
It bears the grimy water-streak
Of rinsings such as some long rain
Might drool across the window-pane
Wherethrough he peers, with troubled frown,
As some lorn team drives by for town.
His brow is elfed with wispish hair,
With tangles in it here and there,
As though the warlocks snarled it so
At midmirk when the moon sagged low,

THE RILEY READER

And boughs did toss and skreek and shake,
And children moaned themselves awake,
With fingers clutched, and starting sight
Blind as the blackness of the night!

The Hoosier Folk-Child!—Rich is he
In all the wealth of poverty!
He owns nor title nor estate,
Nor speech but half articulate,—
He owns nor princely robe nor crown;—
Yet, draped in patched and faded brown,
He owns the bird-songs of the hills—
The laughter of the April rills;
And his are all the diamonds set
In Morning's dewy coronet,—
And his the Dusk's first minted stars
That twinkle through the pasture-bars
And litter all the skies at night
With glittering scraps of silver light;—
The rainbow's bar, from rim to rim,
In beaten gold, belongs to him.

THE POET OF THE FUTURE

O THE Poet of the Future! He will come to us as comes

The beauty of the bugle's voice above the roar
of drums—

The beauty of the bugle's voice above the roar
and din

Of battle-drums that pulse the time the victor marches in.

His hands will hold no harp, in sooth; his lifted brow will bear

No coronet of laurel—nay, nor symbol anywhere,

Save that his palms are brothers to the toiler's
at the plow,

His face to heaven, and the dew of duty on
his brow.

He will sing across the meadow,—and the woman at the well
Will stay the dripping bucket, with a smile
 ineffable;
And the children in the orchard will gaze wistfully the way
The happy songs come to them, with the fragrance of the hay;
The barn will neigh in answer, and the pasture-lands behind
Will chime with bells, and send responsive lowings down the wind;
And all the echoes of the wood will jubilantly call
In sweetest mimicry of that one sweet voice of all.

O the Poet of the Future! He will come as man to man,
With the honest arm of labor, and the honest face of tan,
The honest heart of lowliness, the honest soul of love
 and above.

THE RILEY READER

His hands will hold no harp, in sooth; his
 lifted brow will bear
No coronet of laurel—nay, nor symbol anywhere,
Save that his palms are brothers to the toiler's
 at the plow,
His face to heaven, and the dew of duty on
 his brow.

I PRAY not for Great riches, nor
For vast estates and castle halls,—
Give me to hear the bare footfalls
 Of children o'er
 An oaken floor
New-rinsed with sunshine, or bespread
With but the tiny coverlet
And pillow for the baby's head;
And, pray Thou, may
The door stand open and the day
 Send ever in a gentle breeze,
 With fragrance from the locust trees.

A SUGGESTIVE PROGRAM FOR THE OBSERVANCE OF RILEY DAY

Because Riley Day is already on the Hoosier calendar of public observance, some suggestions that may help to give variety in celebrating it are made in the following pages. They must be taken as they are intended, as suggestive. A sketch of the life of Mr. Riley and a complete list of his poems that have been set to music, with the names of the publishers from whom they may be obtained, may be found in the biographical edition of Mr. Riley's work:

"Your songs like dews upon the grass
Have brought a miracle to pass,
To stud our lives with gems of thought;
We love you for the songs you've brought."
—(From a schoolgirl to Mr. Riley, October 7, 1913.)

PROGRAM

1 In concert :

Thine a universal love,
America!

Thine the cross and crown thereof,
America!

Aid us, then, to sing thy worth :
God hath builded, from thy birth,
The first nation of the earth—
America! America!

2 Song by the school: America.

3 Paper, or speech :

Why We Celebrate This Day. (The value of the poet; the value of our poet. See the poem They Had No Poet and So They Died (Anonymous); The Poet of the Future (by Riley). Also If I Knew What Poets Know.)

4 Song: A Song.

5 Recitation: The Blossoms on the Trees.

6 Quotations from the Nature poetry of Riley.
(See end of program.)

7 Recitation: Out to Old Aunt Mary's.

THE RILEY READER

- 8 Paper: Riley's Patriotism. (Consult the patriotic poems in this book and as many others as you can.)
- 9 Song: A Life-Lesson.
- 10 Paper: Riley as Nature Poet. (Base paper on the nature poems in this book.)
- 11 Recitation: The Circus-Day Parade.
- 12 Responsive exercises: Let Something Good Be Said.

First row of pupils:

"When over the fair fame of friend or foe
The shadow of disgrace shall fall, instead
Of words of blame, or proof of thus and so,"

Whole school:

"Let something good be said."

Second row:

"Forget not that no fellow-being yet
May fall so low but love may lift his head:
Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet,"

Whole school:

"If something good be said."

Third row:

"No generous heart may vainly turn aside
In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead
But may awaken strong and glorified,"

THE RILEY READER

Whole school:

“If something good be said.”

Fourth row:

* * * * *

“And by your own soul’s hope of fair renown,”

Whole school:

“Let something good be said,

13 Song: The Raggedy Man.

14 Recitation: Who Santy Claus Wuz.

15 Whole school:

INDIANA

Our Land — our Home! — the common home indeed

Of soil-born children and adopted ones—

The stately daughters and the stalwart sons

Of Industry:—All greeting and godspeed!

O home to proudly live for, and, if need Be, proudly die for, with the roar of guns

Blent with our latest prayer.—So died men once. . . .

THE RILEY READER

Lo, Peace! . . . As we look on the land THEY freed—

Its harvests all in ocean-overflow

Poured round autumnal coasts in billowy gold—

Its corn and wine and balmèd fruits and flow'rs,—

We know the exaltation that they know

Who now, steadfast inheritors, behold

The Land Elysian, marveling "This is ours!"

16 Song by the school:

A Peace-Hymn of the Republic. (This may be sung to the tune of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, a slight change for the chorus.)

ADDITIONAL SUGGESTIONS

QUOTATIONS FROM THE NATURE POETRY OF RILEY

- 1 The buds may blow, and the fruit may grow,
And the autumn leaves drop crisp and sear;
But whether the sun, or the rain, or the snow,
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear.
- 2 The Yellowbird:
Like a flashing sun-ray,
Flitting everywhere:
Dangling down the tall weeds
And the hollyhocks,
And the lordly sunflowers
Along the garden-walks.
- 3 What is sweeter, after all,
Than black haws, in early Fall?—
Fruit so sweet the frost first sat, Dainty-toothed, and nibbled at!
- 4 O'er garden blooms
On tides of musk,
The beetle booms adown the glooms
And bumps along the dusk.
- 5 The toadstool bulges through the weeds,
And lavishly to left and right
The fireflies, like golden seeds,
Are sown about the night.

THE RILEY READER

6 The Frog: (Recitations by separate pupils.)

(a) Who am I but the Frog—the Frog!

My realm is the dark bayou,
And my throne is the muddy, moss-grown log
That the poison-vine clings to.

* * * * *

(b) What am I but a King—a King!—

For the royal robes I wear—
A scepter, too, and a signet-ring,
As vassals and serfs declare:
And a voice, god wot, that is equaled not
In the wide world anywhere!

(c) I can talk to the Night—the Night!

Under her big black wing
She tells me the tale of the world outright,
And the secret of everything.

* * * * *

(d) And I can see through the sky—the
sky—

As clear as a piece of glass;
And I can tell you the how and why
Of the things that come to pass.

* * * * *

And the wide world sing: Long live the King,
And grace to his royal whim!

THE RILEY READER

- 7 Little brook! Little brook!
You have such a happy look—
Such a very merry manner, as you swerve and curve and crook—
And your ripples, one and one,
Reach each other's hands and run
Like laughing little children in the sun!
- 8 Little brook, sing a song
Of a leaf that sailed along
Down the golden-braided center of your current swift and strong,
And a dragon-fly that lit
On the tilting rim of it,
And rode away and wasn't scared a bit.
- 9 Does the medder-lark complane, as he swims high and dry
Through the waves of the wind and the blue of the sky?
Does the quail set up whissel in a disappointed
way,
Er hang his head in silunce, and sorrow all
the day?
Is the chipmuck's health a-failin'?—Does he
walk, er does he run?
Don't the buzzards ooze around up thare jest
like they've allus done?
Is they anything the matter with the rooster's
lungs er voice?
Ort a mortal be complanin' when dumb animals rejoice?

THE RILEY READER

- 10 While the heart beats young and our pulses
 leap and dance,
 With every day a holiday and life a glad romance,—
 We hear the birds with wonder, and with wonder watch their flight—

* * * * *

- 11 While the heart beats young!—While the heart beats young!
 O green and gold old Earth of ours, with azure overhung
 And looped with rainbows!—grant us yet
 this grassy lap of thine—
 We would be still thy children, through the shower and the shine!
- 12 And so I love clover—it seems like a part Of the sacerdest sorrows and joys of my hart;
 And wharever it blossoms, oh, thare let me
 bow
 And thank the good God as I'm thankin'
 Him now;
 And I pray to Him still fer the stren'th when I die,
 To go out in the clover and tell it good-by,
 And lovin'ly nestle my face in its bloom
 While my soul slips away on a breth of perfume.

THE RILEY READER

- 13 It hain't no use to grumble and complane;
It's jest as cheap and easy to rejoice.—
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
W'y, rain's my choice.
- 14 They's something kindo' harty-like about the atmusfere
When the heat of summer's over and the coolin' fall is here—
Of course we miss the flowers, and the blossums on the trees,
And the mumble of the hummin'-birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin'; and the landscape
through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the airly autumn days
Is a pictur' that no painter has the colorin' to mock—
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.
- 15 Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! whare the crick
so still and deep Looked like a baby-river that was laying half asleep.

* * * * *

Thare the bullrushes growed, and the cat-tails so tall,
And the sunshine and shadder fell over it all;

THE RILEY READER

And it mottled the worter with amber and gold
Tel the glad lilies rocked in the ripples that rolled;
And the snake-feeder's four gauzy wings fluttered by Like a ghost of a daisy dropped out of the sky.

- 16 Tell you what I like best—
'Long about knee-deep in June,
'Bout the time strawberries melts
On the vine,—some afternoon
Like to jes' git out and rest,
And not work at nuthin' else!

17 THE NATURALIST

He turns him from all worldly care Unto the sacred fastness of
The forests, and the peace and love
That breathes there prayer-like in the breeze
And coo of doves in dreamful trees—
Their tops in laps of sunshine laid,
Their lower boughs all slaked with shade.

With head uncovered has he stood,
Hearing the Spirit of the Wood—
Hearing aright the Master speak
In trill of bird, and warbling creek;

THE RILEY READER

- In lisp of reeds, or rainy sigh
Of grasses as the loon darts by—Hearing aright the storm and lull,
And all earth's voices wonderful.
- 18 In the Muskingum Valley—it 'peared like the skies Looked lovin' on me as my own mother's eyes.
- 19 The sense of a kiss, and a moonlit room,
And dewy odors of locust-bloom—
A sweet white cot—and a cricket's cheep.
- 20 The blue above and the green below!
Would that the world were always so!—
Always summer and warmth and light,
With mirth and melody day and night!
Birds in the boughs of the beckoning trees.
Chirr of locusts and whiff of breeze—
World-old roses that bud and blow.—
The blue above and the green below.
